Rob,

Okay, thank you!

I would say that the no turn restrictions for that intersection should be reviewed once the day care is no longer being ran at that building as that would be the primary concern.

My understanding is that it is for sale. TBD if it is purchased and the existing building is used as is or demo and rebuild.

Rob,

What are the plans for the current day care facility at East St. and E. Lincoln St. upon the completion of the new YMCS CDC? I must of missed that part of this conversation. I think we would need to know that information more before deciding on right turn on red traffic lights. My cents on the topic.

Thoughts regarding Grant's question? I'll drive it as I had not thought of this being a consideration prior to this. Happy to hear your thoughts.

Thanks

Rob -

Upon the opening of the new YMCA CDC, will the restriction on right turns on red at the East Street-E Lincoln intersection be removed?

- Would it be possible to have stop signs placed at the 2 intersections of the alley by Hanco. We have children that ride their bikes to school and other places and have numerous times come close to being struck by cars speeding through the alley or blindly turning at the intersections. This alley is highly utilized by Jefferson parents and students along with Hanco. My wife and I have also been close to being struck by people speeding through the intersections.
